HOSTAGE FOR 6 WEEKS

Pirates free 9 RP sailors

WING TAPPING SAILORS WHO were part of the crew of a Japanese tanker that was hijacked by pirates off the coast of Somalia in East Africa, have been released after being held hostage for six weeks and will return home soon, foreign officials said yesterday.

Foreign Secretary Alberto Fernandez said all 22 crew members of the Golden Breeze, which was seized on Oct. 28, were "safe and in good physical condition" after being released earlier this Wednesday.

Japanese Consul, the undersecretary for consular affairs, said the 22 sailors had left the ship and a 75-kg multinational naval force would escort the tanker into international waters. It will then send the tanker part of India under the control of multinational captain, according to Reuters.

From India, the Filipino seamen will be repatriated to the Philippines and are expected to arrive in Manila on Dec. 18.

Somalia pirates have been in the custody of the nine Filipino sailors included aside from Italian, British, Canadian, chief mate, Lucio Quila, second mate, Raymundo Hernandez, chief mate, Shunji Sano, chief engineer, Adriano Sempio, first engineer, Carlos Lario, second engineer, Luciano Villanueva, host, and 10 others.

The Philippine government expressed its deep gratitude to the ship owners, international shipping authorities, and participants in the multinational naval efforts to secure the hijacked vessel, for the safe release of the crew.

News on ransom

He said that family members of the Filipino seamen have thanked the government for its efforts in seeking the release of the crew members.

On Monday, the United States Office for the Coordination of Humanitarian Affairs said the plane was destined to kill the crew of a tanker.

An official in Rome told the Agence France Press it was unclear if a ransom had been paid.

Consigli said, "We have no other means on that. We look to the ship owners to resolve such cases. We have no details of the contact (with the hijackers). The government maintains the policy of not negotiating with hijackers."

The 8,250-ton tanker, carrying crew members from Rome, the Philippines and South Korea and up to 10,000 tons of highly explosive bombs, was hijacked on Oct. 28 on a dangerous mission off the Italian coast.

Consigli said the release was the "surface effect" of such incidents in Somalia. He said a similar incident last year took three months to resolve. Hijackers and kidnapping in Somalia were resolved in previous months. He said, Credit to D. Raimo and AFP and AP.

In Pampanga, 'jueteng' is STL, says new group

CITY OF SAN FERNANDO—THE government-run small town lottery (STL) is largely known to many bettors in Pampanga as "jueteng," the chair of the Pampanga Anti-Gambling Council said.

"In common folk, they don't call STL as STL," they call STL "jueteng," Fr. Romeo Bago, OFM, said, and at the launch of the second issue on Tuesday.

"It is still the same, it's jueteng. Casinos go to houses and legalizing jueteng doesn't make a moral," he said.

In a meanwhile, the PRC said "jueteng and STL have threatened the moral values of our families... The betting transaction is most unfair because as people give their money to the lot authorities, there is no equal exchange of goods or services."

Questions

"However, we should ask the following questions: In the absence of accountability, where does the hard-earned money of the people go after it has been placed into the hands of those who gather here? Where is the money of the community spent and distributed to?" he said.

Bago said the PRC wants to stop both illegal and legal gambling and will work for the constitutional STL next year.

"Illegal and legal gambling... make powerful and influential the gambling operators and some politicians who benefit from them," said the manifesto signed by civil society leaders who also joined the launch of the Pampanga Anti-Gambling Council Inc., by far the loudest civil society group in the province.

As it called bettors to stop trying their luck on jueteng, STL, and other forms of gambling, PRC asked government officials and local executives to "repeal the provisions of accepting jueteng money" is called on military and police officials to "value the law and dismantle illegal gambling operations."

Values

It asked private business partners to "promote virtuous and moral values" and urged state leaders to be part of the crusade.

"We call on gambling operators and those who support them to stop taking away the hard-earned money of our people and to stop disrupting the moral values of the Pampangans and even people of other provinces where the issue of gambling is very pressing. We pray that your hearts liberate itself from gambling," the PRC said.

CAPT. COLIN F. KELLY JR., the first American in World War II, is honored by the Philippine government through a peace memorial statue at the Clark Freeport.

 Inquirer General Issues

CLARK FREEPORT—A 10-METER HIGH-RISE statue of the first American in World War II was unveiled here on Monday. The first to be built in his name in the Philippines in post-war years.

The opening of the Capt. Colin F. Kelly Jr. Peace Memorial Statue followed that of the opening of the first US Navy and Coast Guard office in Clark's hometown in Madison, Florida, according to Lt. Col. Clark (Robert), chief of the US Air Force program of the Asia US Military Assistance Program (USMAP).

Speaking on behalf of US Ambassador Francis Rourke, Crawford said the heroism of Kelly, then 20 and a US 77th Infantry Division, inspired the American nation after the Dec. 8, 1941 bombing by the Japanese of Pearl Harbor in Hawaii.

Clark, a former US Air Force Base and 1991 and was an economic zone of the Philippine government, was an "intensely brave" warrior of the storm, Crawford said.

It was the first time the city of Clark was with very close ties between Filipino and American troops since 1999, he said. The joint war games resumed under the Visiting Forces Agreement.

The statue, a 10-meter-tall bronze statue of Kelly in a military uniform, is "absolutely beautiful," said Crawford. It is located inside the 100-acre Kelly Theater.

Robbers break into glassworks shop in Quezon City

By James L. Andrade

SIX ARMED ROBBERS BROKE into an aluminum and glassworks shop in Quezon City last dawn, robbing it.

They ransacked Agila Agila 30, and then tied up its father, Agila Agila, owner of Agila Glass and Aluminum Corp., and other members of the household.

Agila, who had a deep gash on the forehead and a broken arm, was later taken to the Medical City in Manila.

A report from the Quezon City Police District Office on Nov. 30 said that the six men, who were armed with knives and a gun, broke into the Agila's house on EDSA Road, near the intersection of EDSA and EDSA, between 7:30 a.m. and 8 a.m. yesterday.

The shop and aluminum shop is on the ground floor of the three-story building.

The Agila's live in the upper floor.

Police said Agila is in a fight off the robbers who began his fight late before he was bound along with his father and other family members.

The men then ransacked the house, taking two cellular phones, two silver Agila's and, in all, cash worth P3,000 and other items.

The six suspects were then separate ways after the robbery.

The Agila's were later treated for their headwound who was apparently serious but they had no serious injury.

Restoration, not demolition, says Luneta Hotel's new owner

By Allan W. Lopez

REMARKS BY JEROME, THE new owner of the Luneta Hotel in Manila, yesterday announced that the 90-year-old structure would be restored to its previous glory in three years time.

"We will make it stronger. We will not touch the facade," Jerome Wong, an engineer of the company said.

The hotel on T. M. Kalos Street, one of the few remaining structures that survived World War II, has been undergoing "structural rehabilitation and retrofit" since it was bought by Jerome last August.

Completed in 1918, the Luneta Hotel was designed by Spanish architect-engineer Salvador Bana, according to a study by Dean Jose Joseph Penabaz of the University of Santo Tomas College of Architecture.

It is being turned to the only structure monument of French Neoclassical architecture with Philippine colonial touch left in the country, Jerome said.

The dilapidated building housing Hotel Park was declared a historical landmark by the National Historical Institute and is protected by French colonial decree 1905, which makes it unlawful to alter or destroy the original features of an edifice classified by the IHC as historic structure.

"Without prior written permission from the IHC,"

Members of the Heritage Conservation Society were initially alarmed over reports that demolition permit had applied for a demolition permit but company representatives and Manila building official Metro had agreed. They said the permit would only allow structural rehabilitation.

Wigman
"We are vigilant about it comes to that. Mayor (Alfredo) Lim's decision is always to abide by the law. The mayor wants to preserve historic buildings especially if it serves a law that protects them," he said.

In May 2006, then Manila Mayor Luis Arroyo signed the Department of Public Works and the owners of abandoned private buildings to demolish old and "dangerous" structures, including the Luneta Hotel.

At that time, the hotel was in a state of deterioration due to lack of maintenance, having been abandoned for a long time. There were also signs of decay, including rusted columns that would give, falling concrete panels and a nearly collapsing ground floor beam.

The structure was also found to be unsafe upon inspection. The decision to demolish especially during earthquake, around May, was the immediate reason for the move to demolish the structure.

The company would have been "constructing a new structural steel framed building inside an existing building" to make it safe and sound.

Architect Jerome Agila, IHC board member, said he was satisfied with the restoration for the structural reasons which specified that "the existing exterior building (in structural facade) would be retained, there would be no alterations to the existing major architectural features and no additional floor levels shall be allowed."

Whitewash
In a 2006 article, Jerome Agila and IHC board member Manila Mayor described the "whitewash" of the hotel, including the use of lime, concrete, grout and other structural materials that were in structural support of the building's facade. "The old facade was the 'old facade' (the facade) that added a touch of lightness to the old structure," he said.

The structural restoration would be completed in a year's time last year, after which work on the architectural up gradings would begin.

A NATIONAL Historical landmark, the Luneta Hotel near Rizal Park is undergoing structural rehabilitation according to the company that bought it.

Sumilao farmers' plaint: The bigger picture

ON TARGET

THE SUMILAO farmers who are now in Manila after winning 1,700 hectares are giving a lot of credit to the public because their dream is supported by some members of the Catholic Church.

The farmers want 144 hectares of land, more owned by the Government, to be given to them under the Comprehensive Agrarian Reform Program.

This volunteer group is the advocacy of the late President Benigno Aquino who "those who have lost in life should have more in life."

"Between the rich and the poor is the fight for justice. I will always side with the poor. I have helped many poor people get justice."

At this time, I am talking with Ben Agila Corp., not the former Ben Agila Corp. for me all day.

About three years ago, long before the current controversy I had a conversation with Ben Agila, president of Ben Agila Corp.

Agila was talking with me about the Sumilao farmers who are now in Manila after winning 1,700 hectares are giving a lot of credit to the public because their dream is supported by some members of the Catholic Church.

The businessmen said that BAC, upon the invitation of the family-owned government, would set up post-harvest facilities in the Sumilao area.

The facilities would be the first in a planned integrated agri-industrial complex for Sumilao that would include feed mills, farms for piggy and poultry raising with a treatment plant for waste from the farms and a place to grow thousands of cows in the first batch.

The BAC head and his company's family-owned business would be duplicated in other parts of the country, if it succeeded, in other other farms.

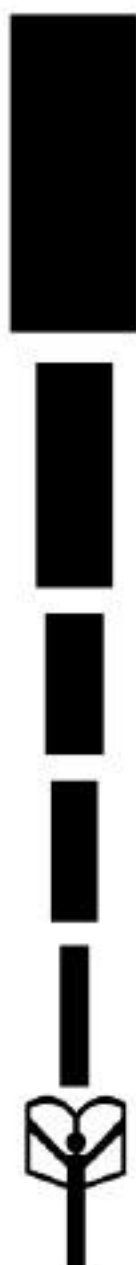

"We have Agila's map of giving back to the people who have made the first what it is now," Agila said.

Agila, a former vice president, said helping the poor was an "obligation of business."

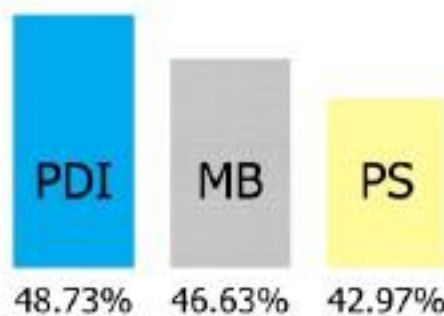

When I said his letter to the Sumilao farmers on Nov. 15, Agila said he was talking with me about the Sumilao farmers who are now in Manila after winning 1,700 hectares are giving a lot of credit to the public because their dream is supported by some members of the Catholic Church.

AQUATIC COACH JOHN JOSEPH VICTOR has been the secret of the country's success in taking eight gold medals from the swimming pool in the Southeast Asian Games, three less effort in 14 years.

Joseph and fellow champion Poley Brown, first runner-up and Nicko Thompson to second place in the Philippine Swimming Association last years ago, would a turbulent power struggle and intense rivalry started implementing drastic actions to improve the sport.

"What the NCAA should make apparent to the swimming community in the Philippines is that we have a program," said Joseph in a hot message from Thailand, where the country's swimmers will arrive today.

He said there is more "a clear pathway the swimmers to get to the United States for training, and a free will be like Miguel (Medina), Ryan (Arduña) and David (Cordero)." Medina won three individual golds, 100m and 200m individual medley and 200m freestyle, while Cordero generated two bronze medals and 1,500m free. Cordero claimed the 50m free over a 300m freestyle. In previous years he had won the 100m freestyle.

It was the best RP performance since the 1976 Olympics of Eric Medalla, who won the 100m freestyle in Manila. It also will surpass the three gold medal haul of the country in the 2005 Philippine edition.

"Our team and the coaches and all parents were helping me out for this. We are lucky," he said. "This is a phenomenal achievement. It's a great moment for me and the team."

Inspired by Italy's Most Beautiful 'Cities of Art'

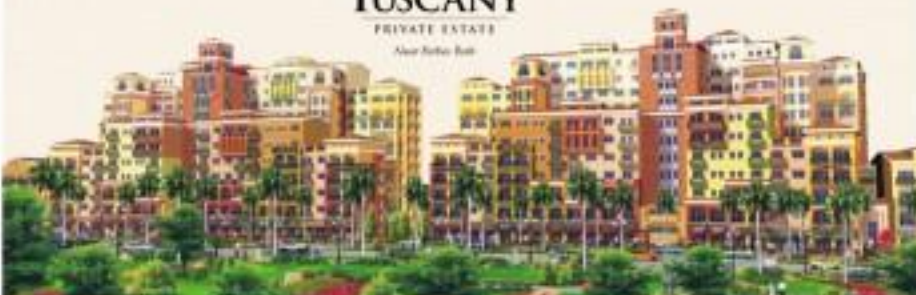

Leaning Tower, PISA

St. Peter's Basilica, ROME

Leaning Tower, PIENZA

...inspired by Italy's most beautiful 'Cities of Art'.

The inspiration of McKinley Hill's current community, The Tuscany Private Estate.

Reminiscent of some very fine villages of art, three, seven residential clusters rise in Tuscany Mediterranean splendor. With elegant stone cladding and arched, vaulted rooflines. And historic facades in classical lines. Close by, generous indulgences have been graciously laid out. Delight in healthy recreation at India Tuscany's play area. Or in Piazza della Signoria. Share the finest wine with friends from the European-style wine cellar. Shop in style along the small arcade at Upper McKinley Hill. And take pride in your home's Piazza Vecchia, an attraction inspired by the oldest and most famous bridge in Italy's Florence.

Celebrate la vita Toscana. Where every sight and sound is an absolute pleasure.

KITCHEN RESCUE

Pigging out in a classy place

MAMILA HAS NOT BEEN IN a long, long while a restaurant as pretty as Arlington. Nothing, I mean nothing, was spared in coming to look.

To the left, as you enter, is a stylish bar behind it, a well-stocked walk-in wine cellar. To your right is a patisserie with dozens and dozens filled with freshly baked bread, delicious cookies, chocolates and other items of which are packaged and would make excellent gifts. Their cuisine menu are my favorites.

Immediately you take right of the dining table devoted to beautiful sugar sculptures in glass by Bobby Carillo. Standing elegantly the sculptures are all shaped wine glasses. One can not be sure to buy for heart's content, without worrying that it will chip or break.

Walking further into the room, one catches a glimpse of the lounge area of the art open kitchen that is as large as the whole dining area. It has hooded lights that keep-changing colors.

Making it is time for the season of Fests. Advertisements to dates last Monday with a really impressive spread. Samples of what is on their menu were served. Indeed Openers in Champagne Sauce, Fresh Oysters with Cauliflower, Carpaccio of Australian Tenderloin with Avocado Sauce, and Truffle Oil, Vegetarian Fried Stone Lotus with Roasted Ginger Dip, Pan seared Filet.

Chemical Romance in Manila

THE MULTIPLATINUM-selling Asian rock band My Chemical Romance is performing on Jan. 26, 2008 at the Fort Bonifacio Open Field, Taguig.

Formed nearly a half-decade ago, the band is currently composed of singer Gerard Way, guitarist Frank Iero, and bassists Ray Toro, and James Iha. The band recorded its indie-label debut album in 2002 before being signed to Reprise Records, which released its "Three Cheers for Sweet Revenge" album in 2004.

It sold more than one million copies.

Dangerous

The second was released with 2006's "The Black Parade," the album that established MCR as a world-class group whose music has been the subject of debate among fans and the media.

Band members have rejected the term "rock" to describe their sound, preferring to call it a simply as rock as at their website says, "vicious, dangerous pop." They cite Queen, The Who, and The Beatles as influences.

The MCR gig is being promoted by Star Cinema. Call 997-6430 for tickets and 745. Photo: Imagination
